Projects can't all happen at once - Danyluk

By VICKI BROOKER

News that grant approval had been received for the conversion of the warehouse portion of Northern Lights Library System headquarters to an allied arts centre had been "already all over town," Elk Point Mayor Parrish Tung told the small crowd at last Thursday's community information meeting. "So we don't have an agenda."

"When we invited Minister of Municipal Development Ray Danyluk, we wanted to find out the status on the grant. Since then the County of St. Paul and the Town of Elk Point have come on stream [as supporters], so the evening's main focus has been covered."

The meeting was also designed "to give you a sense of what we are planning for a future that you are part of. We are fortunate enough to have been elected to represent you, even though sometimes the decision-making is pretty heavy."

Tung introduced Alvina Schuhmacher, Dennis Jasinsky and Dwayne Yaremkevich, who along with Thomas Kondla, make up a "very hard working council," and said that by the end of their current term in office, the five plan to have a three to five-year business plan in place for the town.

"When I was a county councillor, we had discussions with the towns, and I realized that we are one community and need to work together," Danyluk said. "We have some of our best conversations at hockey games and other events when we're all together, but when we get in our council seats, we get territorial."

"When this community started, it needed services, the elevators, the trains and the businesses that provided services for the whole community."

Final curtain falls on 'Tons of Money'

By VICKI BROOKER
Staff Writer

It's the end of another successful run for Elk Point Community Choir and Friends, with the final curtain call Sunday night for nine sell-out performances of Will Evans and Valentine's 1920s British farce, 'Tons of Money.'

The hilarious tale showed what could happen when an unsuccessful inventor, Aubrey Allington, played by Don Conrad, inherited a life interest in a fortune, just as he and his wife Louise (Kelsey Mueller) were about to be buried in unpaid bills. The two enjoyed a comfortable life in a stately home, waited on by Sproules, the butler (John Sieben) and Simpson, the parlourmaid (Cheryl Kurash) and enlivened by daily encounters with live-in aunt, Miss Benita Mullet (Dixie Coleman. Unfortunately, inventing is only profitable if someone wants to buy the inventions, and alas, Allington's brainwaves aren't getting much response.

The arrival of solicitor James Chesterman (Alan Kostyniuk) was timely, indeed, and it was hard to be sorry about the passing of Aubrey's relative when they needed the money so badly. The only thing was, all that money would go to their creditors and they wouldn't have any left to live the lifestyle to which they'd become accustomed.

One provision of the will is that the inheritance would revert, on Aubrey's death, to his cousin George Maitland. However, Cousin George has disappeared and abroad and is presumed dead. Hmm... that means that if Aubrey died, Louise would inherit the money with no strings attached....

How should he die? Aubrey had a plan, and if the butler hadn't adjusted the clock so Louise would blow down the speaking tube and blow up Aubrey's workshop 10 minutes early, it might just have worked. While the household staff and Giles the gardener (Shilo Salzman) are investigating the resulting explosion, the seriously tattered inventor sneaked back to the house to tell Louise he's on his way to hiding out, preparatory to returning as the long lost George.

For instance, he said volunteers from both groups work together.

"Volunteers are the heartbeat of the community, especially in rural communities. We get with our communities to work together."

However, Danyluk said, "nothing drives me crazier than working together to pay utilities. That's not right. Volunteers should sell pies but for structures, where they should be assisted at the 50 per cent level."

"I believe the Alberta government is part of the community and needs to work with towns and municipalities to get things done."

"Look at this [Seniors Recreation Centre] hall - it got a lot of support from the municipalities, the local people and the government. We are doing that now with the proposed new building."

Danyluk emphasized that it is "critical we focus on projects we can't have them all happen at the same time. We only have so much [funding] to go around. I thank and praise you for getting involved in the community and when we get the Allied Arts financed and done, we need to discuss as a community what our next project will be, and to get behind it and get moving."

Mayor Tung outlined the town's current projects, including the new residential subdivision, which started out as 18 lots, but is now 17 because of the decision to retain the playground already in place.

"Ten lots have been sold, and the plan is that we will use that money to develop more lots. We don't want to borrow, so we are doing it by stages."

The town's "official centennial project is the playground at the Elementary School, and it's a very good example of cooperation." The county of St. Paul, the town, the school division and the school council are all contributing toward the cost.

Other 2007 projects, outlined on displays in the hall, include water and sewer line replacement on 56A Ave, curb and gutter on 49 St. between 51 and 53 Aves. and on 49 Ave. between 52 and 54 St.

Other possible projects include a new fire hall, an upgrade of the water treatment plant and a possible underground water line which would allow the town to pump water from the river as it is needed

Danyluk reminded the crowd that "just because we're focusing on major projects, doesn't mean there isn't money for anything else. If you have small projects, we have the money. CFEP and CIP are available."

"Never forget," Danyluk cautioned, "funding will not go where the responsibility belongs somewhere else," such as projects that should be covered by municipalities or school boards.

Danyluk commented briefly on the Affordable Housing Authority, which is currently looking at the responses from the hearings. The Elk Point meeting was advantageous because "we do need to hear the perspective of rural Alberta. The Elk Point presentations talked about solutions, and I think that was excellent."

To close the information meeting, Danyluk had a presentation for council.

"When I became Minister of Municipal Affairs, I was told I would be responsible for what the plaques we present to communities marking major milestones would look like. This is the first plaque moulded and sent to us for an event in Alberta."

Main Street break-in

Pilot project aimed at Frog Lake pedestrian safety

The Elk Point detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and their partners at the Morning Sky Health and Wellness Centre on the Frog Lake First Nation are about to begin a pilot project in an attempt to lower the rate of pedestrians being struck on area roadways. The campaign will consist of both enforcement and education. Beginning April 1st, the R.C.M.P. will begin a campaign to target pedestrians walking on the wrong side of the road. Violators will be issued a traffic ticket, but they will be given an opportunity to have the ticket withdrawn if they agree to attend an educational session. This education session will be delivered prior to the court date on the ticket and will be presented by members of the R.C.M.P., the Morning Sky Health and Wellness Centre and officials from the First Nations and Inuit Health Branch at Health Canada. At the same time, the Frog Lake First Nation has purchased reflective armbands which will be handed out by the local Frog Lake Band Office, the Morning Sky Health and Wellness Centre and the R.C.M.P. officers on patrol. This campaign is not meant to be a "cash grab".

The issuing of the traffic ticket is meant to be a tool to get recipients of the ticket into the education session. There is a similar campaign in effect in Alberta involving motorists not having child passengers restrained in motor vehicles. The same type of option is available for motorists receiving those tickets where they can attend an education session delivered by the Regional Health Authority and members of the R.C.M.P. However, the campaign involving pedestrians is believed to be the first of its kind in Alberta. Before beginning this campaign authority had to be received from Alberta Justice.

The campaign is expected to run for six months and will be re-examined at that time.

For further information please contact Cst. Jason Barber at Elk Point Detachment (780) 724-3964 or Karen Abraham-Tremblay and Loretta Quinney at Morning Sky Health and Wellness Centre (780) 943-3777.

Mammography - what you need to know

By JOCELYN BROWN

Alberta Breast Cancer Screening Program

Alberta Cancer Board

1. A mammogram is an x-ray of the breast..

2. There are two types of mammograms: screening and diagnostic..

3. Screening mammograms check for abnormalities that may be breast cancer.

4. Diagnostic mammograms are performed when an abnormality has been found.

5. Women age 50 and over should have a screening mammogram every two years or as recommended by their doctor. (Age is the main risk factor for breast cancer; 80 per cent of cases occur in women over 50).

6. Many studies have shown that regular screening mammography among women age 50 to 69 reduces breast cancer deaths.

7. For women 40 to 49, research findings about mammography are less clear. Some studies have shown that mammography is beneficial in this age group while other studies have shown no benefit.

8. Four x-rays are usually taken for each screening mammogram appointment.

9. For each x-ray, the breast is compressed (flattened) for a few seconds. Compression does not damage breast tissue.

10. Mammograms use a low level of radiation, less than a chest x-ray.

11. All mammograms are free of charge and Screen Test screening mammograms do not require a doctor's referral for women 40 or more years old.

12. May women get mammograms because of a friend's encouragement. Be a breast friend to a woman in your life - pass this on to her!

Is it time for your mammogram? Screen Test is in Elk Point April 26 and 30 and May 1, 2007. Call 1-800-667-0604 toll free today for your appointment.

News from Heritage Lodge

By HEATHER PAQUETTE

Activity Coordinator

It's great to get back after my extended stay in Portugal (which was also quite wonderful!). Unfortunately, Air Canada lost my brain and I didn't get it back until mid-month, or so it felt. In March, we did the regular activities as well as some different activities.

On March 7, a provider of easy-to-put-on clothing and a hearing test and hearing aid technician came in. It was indeed a busy day at the lodge.

On March 9, my husband, John, joined us for "show and tell" regarding our trip to Portugal. We showed some of the items we had purchased and we talked about our European vacation. The residents had many questions and we had at least some of the answers.

Babe Sharkey and company played on March 13. Gabe Bayduza played piano every Tuesday evening, and the month ended with John and Gloria playing on March 30.

The Diabetic Association presented some very interesting and informative material on March 13. The following day, we had a residents' meeting, where some answers were given from the previous meeting and more suggestions and questions were put forth.

We played St. Patrick's Day games on the morning of March 16. Winnie Shepherd was the winner of "The Great Potato Race" with Irene Quinney coming in second and Ida Kapjack coming in third. This was followed by a St. Patrick's Day party game and a limerick game. Then at 10:00 we armchair-traveled to Ireland (where else?).

On March 28, we had our monthly birthday party..

In April, we are looking forward to an Easter egg hunt, travel to Portugal, musical entertainment, Volunteer Week celebrations as well as the regular bingo, lawn dice and bean bag tossing.

Until next time...

Time for spring things

It's April, and even though it didn't look or feel much like it yesterday, it's time to start thinking about the chores of spring.

One exceedingly important task is to pick up all the debris that has accumulated over the winter. This outdoor spring cleaning is every bit as needed as the indoor variety, and for some reason we're always surprised to see how nice our yards, school yards and public places look when the job's completed.

The TV gardening gurus have said we should rake our lawns to remove snow mold - just a tip here: wear a mask. You may not know that you're allergic to snow mold, and even if you're not, you don't want the mold spores taking up residence in your respiratory system.

They also pointed out that if you have elm trees, you should not prune them during the active growing season, which starts right now. Waiting until fall will help to curb the spread of Dutch elm disease.

WAY BACK WHEN...

Bingo vetoed, REA pioneers

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND THE ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF APRIL 3 IN...

1987

Elk Point's development appeal board vetoed the development of a bingo hall in the industrial park, rescinding the approval previously given by the municipal planning commission. A total of 32 ratepayers turned out for the first town annual ratepayers' meeting since 1984, with the widening of Highway 41 and upgrading of streets and water mains among the topics of discussion.

1992

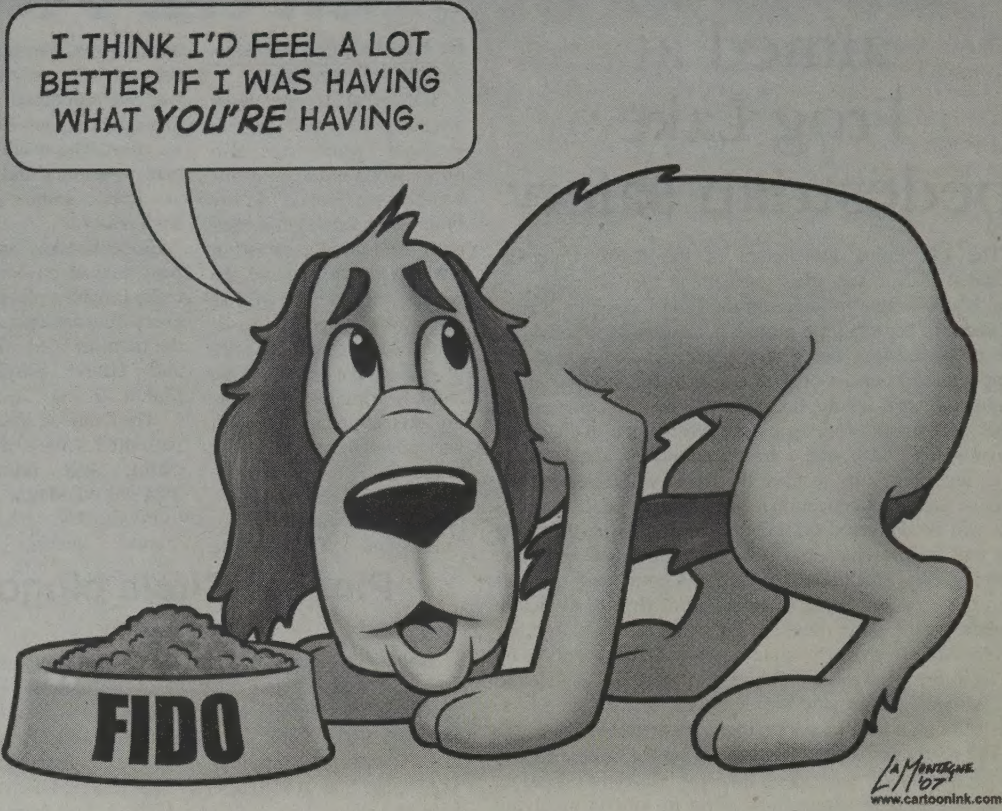

Elk Point Thunder captain Darcy McLaughlin faced off against Brent Nordstrom of the Rimbey WestStars as Elk Point Minor Hockey president Al Pankiw dropped the puck to open the Alberta Midget C provincials. Tourism was at the top of town council's agenda as they debated applications for Community Tourism Action Plan funding, approving a request from the agricultural society for fort-style gates and signage and turning down a request from the Elk Point Golf and Country Club for funding toward the installation of grass greens.

1997

Rural electrification pioneers Wesley Scott, Walter Shankowski, Martin Aarbo and Gunther May, along with the families of Ron Flanders, Bill Slywka and Don Pinder, were presented with awards at the Elk Point REA's annual meeting, with several additional pioneers unable to attend, including Alex Smereka, Paul Pinder, Vic Scott, Bengt Johnson and the families of the late Gus Hellquist and Walter Pilisko. Characters from famous books stumped the fancy-hatted "literary experts" in one of the plays at Elk Point Elementary School's Fine Arts Night.

2002

Canadian Natural Resources met with landowners and area residents to work on resolution of conflicts regarding their long list of applications for new and amended primary recovery schemes in the North Lindbergh, East Lindbergh and Reita Lake areas. Twenty community groups and organizations took part in a community forum sponsored by the chamber of commerce, with chamber president Glenn Harms saying he regarded the evening as "somewhat of a summit" where organizations could discuss ways to combat problems including "being short of funds and just overwhelmed."

GUEST COLUMN...

Beyond boredom

At a recent FCSS Directors' Conference I attended a session where Dr. John Perkins shared the results of a study called "Beyond Boredom" that was done in Hinton between the spring of 2005 and the summer of 2006. The study and results could be likened to any community with similar workplace situations. For complete details on the Hinton case study: the findings of Beyond Boredom go to www.fmf.ab.ca

deanna
from the FCSS desk

It is a common belief that boredom plus money leads to substance abuse. From the literature, it is noted that in high risk and high strain jobs, drug usage is 2.26 times higher. It is also noted it is 27.5 times more likely for these employees to develop alcohol dependence.

The question then becomes, "What causes workplace stress?" The answers are shift work, work in remote locations, travel away from home, workload and the job may be unsatisfactory. Basically, what is happening is that home and family life are really getting hammered.

Are there solutions? Yes, employers could focus on protective factors. These could be: job satisfaction, faith in management and effective supervision and teamwork. The community could also be involved by engaging in broader dialogue with employment companies and develop a work culture that supports healthy lifestyles through emphasizing family and friendly policies.

All of this information may sounds real or not real to you. The problem has become that we have become so used to our stressful lives in the workplace that it is easy to conclude that it is the way it has to be. We may be so used to thinking this way that we have no energy or drive to come up with ways to change it. So just maybe, we need to go back to the beginning and open up dialogue with our employers and our families. After all, talking together and brainstorming solutions together is what teamwork is all about. We all get to be a part of the solution. If we do this, our job satisfaction will be increased and our family lives will be enhanced.

Now what about boredom? You know in the last month or so, damage to property seems to have increased. The question becomes: "Are these people who go around breaking windows and damaging property in any way, bored?" Or is it possible drug or alcohol usage could have influenced the people involved to damage property? Can we apply lack of job satisfaction and family breakdown being a possible bottom line for their boredom? Yes, all of these questions are possibilities. Therefore, our community, along with Hinton, can say there has been an increase in the results of workplace stress.

The bottom line is that boredom, community damage to property, job dissatisfaction, and family breakdown, just doesn't happen. So, we can prevent it. The good news about this is that if each one of us took some time for ourselves to evaluate our own stress, we would know what is causing the problem. Our next step would be to find a way to do something about our problem. This may only involve doing something with ourselves or it may involve opening dialogue with our employer or our own families. Margaret Mead, a great sociologist, is quoted as saying: "Never underestimate the seeds you are sowing and what they can do." The whole key is to not give up and do something. Yes, there is life beyond boredom. And the bottom line is that boredom doesn't have to happen. We can do something about it!

Final curtain falls

Things got more and more complicated when Louise's friend, Jean Everard (Cathy Closs) came to comfort her in her loss, and revealed that she was also the wife of the missing George.

Which George would that be? Would it be Aubrey's reincarnation, the gardener's brother Henery (Shelby Mueller), in disguise, or the REAL George Maitland, (Udo Mueller), who arrive in a puzzling parade, along with a most peculiar, monkish stranger – Aubrey in yet another disguise.

In the end, it didn't matter much: the inheritance was more ounces than tons of money by the time the taxman and bureaucratic red tape got through with it.

'Tons of Money' didn't start out as a musical, but it ended up that way, thanks to Udo Mueller, who created original music and lyrics to "There's Got to Be a Way," sung at the beginning and end by the whole ensemble, "Butler's Lament," sung by Sproules, "Love is the Lesson," sung by Simpson, Louise and Jean, and "It's More Than Just my Marbles that I'm Missing," sung by Miss Mullet, not to mention "I'd Be Rich," versions I, II and III, sung by the two pseudo-Georges and the real George.

This year's play was directed by Cheryl Kurash, with Mabel Gottenbos as seamstress, understudy and walk-through sign totter, John Gottenbos as stage hand and prompter, Ellen Seward as makeup stylist and Velma Hudson as program coordinator. Lighting and sound were coordinated by Rob Walker, with Garry Townsend as his apprentice, and Blaine Easthope built the elegant 1920s drawing room set, with help from the Mabel and John Gottenbos, Dave Pilisko, George Sanders and Wally Zukiwsky. Gordon West assisted with set design, which was enhanced with furniture and plants from local businesses.

Louise Allington introduces her friend Jean Everard to slightly-vague Aunt Benita.

The coming of the iron horse

Elk Point had a long wait for the railroad, which came to St. Paul in 1920, to be extended to our community.

The St. Paul Journal of Feb. 11, 1926, said that, "C. J. Christina, CE, with 14 assistants arrived Tuesday to survey the remainder of the CNR line from Elk Point to St. Walburg at the other end of the steel. It is freely circulated on the street today that the railroad will be completed next summer between St. Paul and St. Walburg."

Two weeks later, the Journal stated, "Word has been received from H. W. Cross, member of the federal house for Athabasca, that practically all the work necessary on the St. Paul branch line of the CNR is to be done this year at an estimated cost of between $525,000 and $625,000. Twenty-one miles of line will be built, of which one is already graded... and 21 miles of steel laid this year."

However, by Nov. 11, the job was still not completed, although the Journal said, "The future town of Elk Point can almost now hear the whistle of the train, the long wait of 15-20 years has been broken."

That first train whistle was heard on September 22,

1927. The line pushed on to Heinsburg, but there remained a gap of 39 miles between there and Frenchman's Butte, where the line had been extended from St. Walburg. The gap was apolitical football for years, according to Elk Point Reflections, with each succeeding federal politician promising to build it. "Had it been possible to build it with promises, it would have been the best railroad in the whole northwest."

Do you know when the first grain elevator was built, and who was its first agent?

Member Profile

Since its inception in 2000, LICA has been very fortunate to have a number of dedicated community volunteers. They live in various parts of the LICA region and bring with them unique skills, experience and a perspective that is key to LICA's success. Hear it first hand from a few of these committed volunteers why they choose to join and the benefits from getting involved.

Bernie Chartrand
Fort Kent Area

Being active in the community is not something new for Bernard Chartrand. Bernie, as his friends fondly call him, was a founding member of LEAPS (Lakeland Environment Agriculture Protective Society) which was the first organized community group in the area. From there, Bernie became an active member of the Community Advisory Committee until its dissolution in the early 1990's and has been with LICA since its inception.

Involved in running the family farm by the young age of 15, Bernie has watched the landscape of the area change over the years and with that the introduction of many challenges. He remembers a time when you didn't know the faces behind industry and people were very suspicious of industry in general. This made it very difficult when the community had concerns - there was no communication and therefore no resolution.

In 1999 when industry began discussions with the community on how they could work together to resolve issues related to industry development, Bernie was one of the first community members to step forward. "When you work one on one with people and get to know them as individuals, there is encouragement between parties to better understand each other." While not overnight, Bernie saw how this new working relationship helped address concerns with unsafe truck routes, road damage, and dust. LICA has helped to "reduce suspicions...it's no longer communication by writing letters, and there is additional accountability by people working face to face."

As a father of eight, Bernie knows the importance of open and honest communication. The best relationships are where you are able to talk, share information, and solve problems. When asked what he would say if he could send a message to his neighbours about LICA, Bernie replied "Get involved. You have to get involved if you want to make changes."

Join LICA

What is LICA?

LICA is a not-for-profit association comprised of committed community, industry, and government members dedicated to responsible development in the Lakeland area.

Benefits of joining LICA?

If you are a community member, you may consider joining LICA to find out first hand what industry development is going on in your area and to represent the voice of the community by facilitating solutions that reflect community interests and concerns. Industry members can benefit by meeting with the community on a regular basis to share information and understand community concerns. All members of LICA have the opportunity to contribute to exciting new environmental initiatives that are planned for the region by sharing their expertise.

Opportunities for involvement?

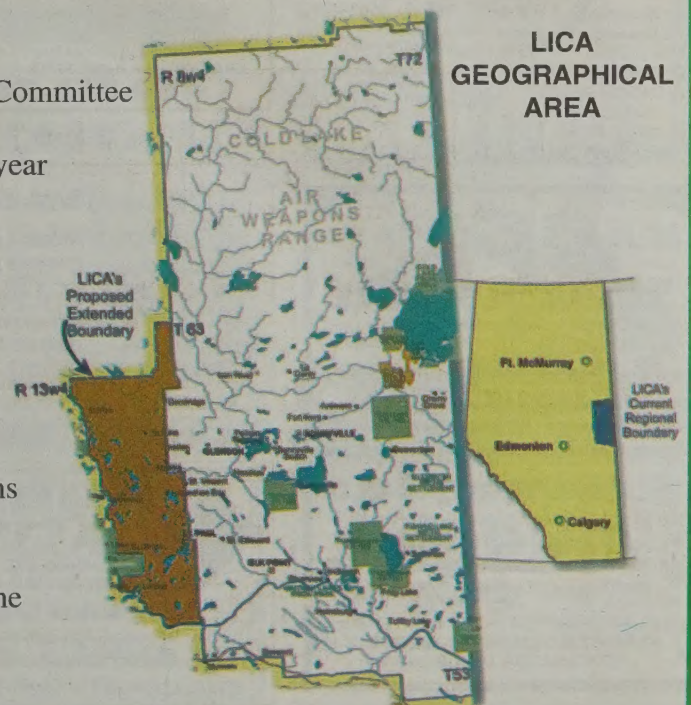

Those who live or work in the LICA region are welcome to apply to participate on LICA's

- Communication Committee
 - Airshed Zone
 - Regional Environmental Water Monitoring Committee
- Or to run for
- Board of Directors positions - elected each year at the Annual General Meeting.

What is the LICA Region?

LICA serves the area West to Range 9, North to the top of the Cold Lake Air Weapons Range, East to the Saskatchewan border, and South to Highway 45.

The proposed boundaries will include all of the M.D. of Bonnyville #87 and all of the County of St. Paul #19.

How do I join?

For more information on how you can become an active volunteer please visit the LICA website at www.lica.ca or contact the LICA office (780) 812-2182 or toll free 1-877-737-2182.
